ing and Music.

Hundreds of school children thronged the spacious aisles of the Exposition building yesterday and made the welkin ring with their merry shouts and joyous laughter. The din of toy whistles, drums and trumpets made the day a chaotic one, and kept nurses and mothers on the qui vive from the time the big doors were thrown open in the morning until late in the afternoon. Bandmaster Seymour was yesterday's sidel at the Exposition. He Introduced chough ragtime music and jolly airs into his usually classic programme to hold the undivided attention of the enthusiastic young sightseers. Almost every number was encored and the Music Hall was the center of attraction throughout the day.

In the intermissions the children and their guardians viewed the Exposition proper, and they held full sway until night, when the older ones appeared.

The art gallery continues to attract general interest, and the Collseum is always crowded when the living pictures are being presented and the lions are on exhibition.

Manager Atkinson said yesterday that tomorrow will be World's Fair Day, and Governor Francis has promised to deliver an address from the Music Hall stage. In the course of the week beginning September 39 and ending October 5 the First Regiment will occupy the Collseum with battalion and regimental drills. Tuesday the Exposition will be given over to the American Pharmaceutical Association. Other days have been arranged for the Drummond Guards, the Naval Militia and other organizations.

The Philiadelphia Commercial Museum's realth of natural products and samples of vitation extended to all. Special for this week All 15 switches reduced to 31 and 32; all 310 pompadours reduced to 5. Imperial Hair Regenerator reduced to 51 per box. Present location, SECOND FLOOR Mermod-Jaccard Building, BROADWAY and LOCUST STREET. WILL OPEN ABOUT NOVEMBER 1st. CHILDREN AT THE EXPOSITION.

The State of Pennsylvania and the city of Philadelphia generously support the museum by annual appropriations, and the National Government contributed $350,000 for the purchase of foreign trade samples in 1890. Over a million dollars has been expended in this work in the last five years, and to-day the collection, of which the exhibit at the Exposition is but a very small section, is the most complete of the kind in existence.

The leading exporters in twenty-eight different States are now making advantageous use of the museum, and its value to the ladustrial interests of Philadelphia and Pennsylvania has been almost incalculable.

Doughty Admirer Overcame an Obdurate Mother's Objections Without Trouble.

Leary O'Leary, the foreman of the grading company at work on the new Washington University grounds, west of Forest Park, has won himself a bride during the last week in an unusual manner. His bride was Miss Mary Ames, a 15-year-old girl, who lived with her mother, Mrs. Margaret Ames, at the corner of Sarah street and Duncan avenue. The couple were married in Clayton by Justice Greens-

For the last several months O'Leary has been boarding at Mrs. Ames's house. He was only there a short while when he fell in love with the landlady's daughter, and asked the mother for her daughter's hand. But Mrs. Ames said no. She said that her daughter was too young to even contemplate marriage, and forbid the young man from speaking a word of love to her until she was 18 years old, when she would no longer object. O'Leary consented and everything went well until about ten days ago, when, it is said, Mary suddenly disappeared. Her mother asked O'Leary to assist her in a search and he readily agreed to do so. He started immediately and traced the girl to Versailles, Ill. O'Leary induced her to re-turn with him, and they arrived here Friday, Once more O'Leary asked Mrs. Ames for the hand of her daughter. He maintained that he had earned the honor and that it would be unfair to longer keep her from him. Mrs. Ames capitulated and the wedding followed. ENGLAND HAS LOST PRESTIGE.

War Has Cost Heavily. New York, Sept. 14.-Ex-Congressman George Fred Williams of Massachusetts has just returned from a trip abroad. As to men and things on the other side, among other things, Mr. Williams said:

George Fred Williams Thinks Boer

"I am glad I am not in English politics. for the speeches made are meaningless and have no point to them. Still, you read of the wonderful and masterly oration delivered on the previous day by Mr. Asquith and of the bold and cutting words of Mr. Gray. I heard both these gentlemen speak, and their sayings were unintelligible to me, and the editorials, while heavy, had no point or pith to them, yet they were fulsome with praise for the scale of the seasons.

and the editorials, while heavy, had no point or pith to them, yet they were fulsome with praise for the speakers mentioned. I have an impression that those gentlemen, as well as the editorial writers, have a high political imagination, and that's all.

"The Boer war has proved a terrible blow to England. It has cost her her military prestige, and the people of the Continental countries are astonished at her weakners. This state of affairs is viewed with the greatest alarm in Germany, which has always considered England to be her powerful ally in case of trouble with France and Russia. Now the people of Germany realize that England, being unable to suppress a small force of Boer farmers, would be a poor ally in case of a conflict with the trained milions of soldiers in the armies of France and Russia.

"Even should the Boer war end now, the selzure of the two Republics and whatever gold and diamonds it may ever bring to England will never pay the latter for the loss of her military standing among other nations. She has already got the punishment she deserves for her brutal treatment of the independent people of South Africa."

HARRIS'S NEW SHOE STORE.

Formal Opening of the "$4 Shoe Man's" Emporium.

Julius Harris, known as the "M shoe man," will celebrate the formal opening of his new store at No. 405 North Sixth street, in the Equitable building, Monday. Every man who calls at the store to-morrow will receive a souvenir of the occasion.

JULIUS HARRIS.

Mr. Harris said yesterday that on entering his new store for the first time after its completion he felt very much as on an occasion twenty years ago, when he attended a vaudeville performance across the street, where the Ringen Stove Company is now situated—he hated to think of leaving.

The interior designing of the new store by Architect Charles H. Dietering is unique. The low ceiling is heavily paneled in mahogany and walnut. At short intervals in the ceiling are electric light globes, and between the panels the ceiling is pointed artistically. The walls are also of mahogany and walnut, highly polished. It is one of the best appointed shoe stores in the city.

A showcase with a width of fifty-two feet has been obtained by building a short addition to the north of the Equitable building, covering over a small court which formerly occupied that space. The rear of this addition is devoted to office purposes. Throughout there has been an effort to make this store complete, and in design distinctly original.

Mr. Harris started in the sheet business.
